Introduction

Digigreens Holdings Ltd is a Kenyan agribusiness that has evolved from a fresh produce grower and supplier into a diversified value-addition and agricultural products enterprise. The company was established with a vision of leveraging Kenya's rich agricultural potential to produce quality products while creating sustainable economic opportunities for farmers, women and youth.

Initially focused on the production and supply of fresh horticultural produce, herbs and fruits, Digigreens has progressively expanded along the agricultural value chain. This transformation has been driven by the need to reduce post-harvest losses, improve farmer returns, respond to changing consumer preferences and capture greater value from locally produced raw materials.

Our Transformation

Our journey has progressed through three key stages:

1. Fresh Produce Production

Digigreens began by producing and supplying fresh vegetables, herbs and fruits, including French beans, snow peas, sugar snaps, okra, rosemary, basil, sage, thyme, avocado, passion fruit and other horticultural products.

Through this experience, the company developed capabilities in production, quality management, aggregation, packaging and market access, particularly for demanding local and export markets.

2. Market and Supply Chain Development

As the business grew, Digigreens recognized the limitations of relying primarily on fresh produce. Perishability, price fluctuations, post-harvest losses and changing market conditions highlighted the need to move further along the value chain.

The company therefore began exploring opportunities to process, preserve, package and brand agricultural products, allowing us to extend shelf life, improve margins and reach a broader customer base.

Our Transformation

3. Value Addition and Diversification

Today, Digigreens is developing a diversified portfolio of value-added agricultural products, including:

-  Coffee – green, roasted and packaged coffee
-  Avocado products – cold-pressed avocado oil
-  Macadamia products – roasted nuts, macadamia butter and cold-pressed oil
-  Herbs and botanicals – fresh and processed herbs

This diversification enables Digigreens to transition from being primarily a producer and supplier of raw agricultural products to a value-driven agricultural enterprise.

Our Value Proposition

Our competitive advantage lies in our ability to connect different stages of the agricultural value chain—from farm and farmer to processing, packaging and market.

Vision

To become a leading Kenyan agribusiness transforming locally produced agricultural resources into high-quality, sustainable and globally competitive value-added products.

Mission

01.

To create value from agriculture through sustainable production, innovative processing, quality products and strong market partnerships while improving livelihoods across our value chain.

02.

Through ethical stewardship, and dedication to excellence, we aim to enhance the livelihoods of farmers, contribute to food security, and promote environmental conservation.
