EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Salato is a Kenyan event-ticketing platform that lets organisers sell tickets online, take payment for every ticket securely through Paystack, and issue each ticket as a PDF with a unique QR code.

Tickets reach buyers by email and WhatsApp, and organisers can broadcast WhatsApp messages to everyone who has bought a ticket, while we keep buyer data private and accurate. Teams scan tickets at the gate, and each organiser is paid through their own Paystack subaccount, less a simple per-ticket commission.

Founded in Nairobi by David Abol Ger and Janet Salaton, Salato launched publicly in 2026.

GROWTH CHALLENGES

Salato is live at salato.app. The product works; our two biggest challenges now are bringing organisers onto the platform and making Salato known to the organisers and buyers who have never heard of us.

1

CUSTOMER ACQUISITION

Winning organisers is slow

- Many organisers still sell through cash, M-Pesa tills and group chats, and switching mid-season feels risky.
- An organiser must trust a new platform with both ticket sales and payouts before signing up.
- It is a two-sided market: organisers want buyers, and buyers come only for events they want.
- Each organiser needs hands-on help to set up their first event.

2

MARKETING

Salato is not yet widely known

- A small budget against established ticketing brands.
- Buyers find events on Instagram, TikTok and WhatsApp status, not on ticketing sites.
- No published case studies yet to prove results to new organisers.
- Each event's promotion is run by the organiser, so Salato's name is easily left out.

HOW WE WILL WIN ORGANISERS

Founder-led sales

Start with Janet's network: conferences, county and EAC programmes, church and community events.

Founding-organiser offer

A reduced fee on the first event for early organisers, in return for a case study.

Venue and promoter partners

Venues, MCs, DJs and church networks recommend Salato to the organisers they work with.

Done-with-you onboarding

We set up each new organiser's first event and gate team with them.

Every ticket markets Salato

"Powered by Salato" on PDF tickets, emails and WhatsApp messages, with a create-your-event link.

Shareable AI posters

Posters sized for Instagram and WhatsApp status, carrying the event's ticket link.

Short video and case studies

TikTok and Instagram clips of fast gate check-ins and real organiser results.

Referrals and small paid tests

Credit for organisers who refer others; small ad tests judged by cost per organiser signed.

KYC: WHAT WE WILL STRENGTHEN

Organisers are paid directly through their own Paystack subaccounts, so Salato must know exactly who it is paying before any money moves. Stronger KYC protects buyers from fake events, protects Salato from fraud and chargebacks, and gives new organisers a reason to trust the platform.

IMPROVEMENT	WHAT IT MEANS AND WHY
Verify organiser identity Before the first payout	National ID or passport, matched to a selfie. Stops impersonation and fake-event fraud.
Business documents Companies, churches, societies	KRA PIN for every organiser; certificate of registration and an authorised signatory for organisations.
Payout account match	The bank or M-Pesa payout account name must match the verified organiser, so money cannot be diverted.
Re-verify on changes	Any change to payout details or account owner triggers fresh checks and a short payout hold.
Event verification New organisers, large events	Proof of venue booking before tickets go on sale above a set size.
Tiered limits	New organisers start with sales or payout limits, raised as they build a clean track record.
Buyer contact checks and consent	One-time code on phone or email, and a clear WhatsApp opt-in, so buyer data stays accurate and messages are wanted.
Data protection	Registration with the Office of the Data Protection Commissioner, encrypted KYC documents, and access for authorised staff only.
Ongoing monitoring	Watch refund and chargeback rates and sudden sales spikes; review flagged organisers before payout.
